

Definitions

Please refer to the University's Glossary of Terms for policies and procedures. Terms and definitions identified below are specific to these procedures and are critical to its effectiveness:

Fraud refers to dishonest activity causing actual or potential financial loss to any person or entity including theft of monies or other property by employees or persons external to the entity and where deception is used at the time, immediately before or immediately following the activity. This also includes the deliberate falsification, concealment, destruction or use of falsified documentation used or intended for use for a normal business purpose or the improper use of information or position for personal financial benefit. The theft of property belonging to an entity by a person or persons internal to the entity but where deception is not used is also considered 'fraud'.

Corruption is dishonest activity in which a director, executive, manager, employee or contractor of an entity acts contrary to the interests of the entity and abuses his/her position of trust in order to achieve some personal gain or advantage for him or herself or for another person or entity. The concept of 'corruption' can also involve corrupt conduct by the entity or a person purporting to act on behalf of and in the interests of the entity, in order to secure some form of improper advantage for the entity either directly or indirectly.

Corrupt conduct, as defined in detail under section 15 of the Crime and Corruption Act 2001 (Qld), means either:

1. conduct that affects or could affect a public official (an employee of a public sector agency) so that the performance of their functions or the exercise of their powers:

- is not honest or impartial, or
- knowingly or recklessly breaches public trust, or
- involves the misuse of agency-related information or material.

Common examples of corrupt conduct include fraud and theft, extortion, unauthorised release of information, obtaining or offering a secret commission and nepotism.

2. conduct that impairs, or could impair, public confidence in public administration. This may include:

- collusive tendering, or
- fraud relating to an application for a licence, permit or other authority relating to public health or safety; the environment; or the State's natural, cultural, mining or energy resources, or
- dishonestly obtaining public funds or State assets, or
- evading a State tax, levy or duty or fraudulently causing a loss of State revenue, or
- fraudulently obtaining or retaining an appointment.

1. Purpose of the procedures

The procedures that follow must be read in association with the Fraud and Corruption Control – Governing Policy, The Fraud and Corruption Control Plan and other related procedures.

2. Planning and Resourcing

The University considers that its fraud and corruption control program is an integral component of its overall risk management framework and will plan for and resource activities accordingly.

Governance and Risk Management manages the Fraud and Corruption Control Plan, which is reviewed and amended at least biennially. The Fraud and Corruption Control Plan outlines the key strategies, actions and accountability for the planning and resourcing measures that address fraud and corruption control.

3. Prevention

The University has a sound and sustainable ethical culture through a process of awareness training, benchmarking and monitoring.

STATUS

Active

Senior management demonstrate a high level of commitment to controlling the risk of fraud and corruption within and by the University.

Every employee and officer of the University has a general awareness of fraud and corruption and how they should respond if this type of activity is detected or suspected.

As fraud and corruption can occur at various levels, appropriate preventive techniques - such as policies, procedures, training, and communication that stop fraud from occurring - are established and maintained.

Categories of fraud and corruption risks are identified in the Fraud and Corruption Control Plan and are managed and updated as required by the Director of Governance and Risk Management

Additional fraud and corruption risks are identified, evaluated and managed by Organisational Unit Managers and maintained in Organisational Unit Risk Registers, which are updated quarterly with appropriate review of control strategies and actions required.

4. Detection

USC has implemented systems aimed at assisting with the detection of fraud and corrupt conduct as soon as possible after it has occurred, in the event that the University's preventative systems fail.

The source of the activity may be:

- internal (perpetrated by an employee or contractor);
- external (perpetrated by a customer or an external service provider); or
- complex (for example, involve collaboration between employees, contractors, and external service providers).

Detection controls are managed by each Organisational Unit and recorded in the University's Fraud and Corruption Control Plan. Refer to the Audit Assurance Framework – Governing Policy for the role of auditor's in detection.

4.1 Mechanisms for reporting suspected fraud and corruption incidents

All staff are expected to report instances of suspected fraudulent and/or corrupt behaviour by the University's Staff Code of Conduct (refer to section 4.1.1).

Suspected fraud or corrupt conduct can be reported either verbally or in writing to various internal personnel. External personnel/bodies are also listed as an alternative mechanism to promote reporting. While there is a preference for reports where the discloser is known, due to the increased likelihood of successful investigations, anonymous disclosures are permitted.

Suspected fraud and corruption incidents may be reported to:

- the Director, Human Resources;
- the PVC (Students);
- the staff member's manager, supervisor or other senior University officer;
- or
- external bodies as applicable (such as the Queensland Crime and Corruption Commission (CCC) and the Queensland Ombudsman).

If staff are not comfortable or able to report internally or to an external authority, they may report it to USC's external and independent whistleblowing service provider. Your Call Whistleblowing Solutions ("Your Call") receives and manages disclosures with confidentiality and impartiality.

This option allows staff to:

- remain completely anonymous; or
- identify themselves to Your Call only; or
- identify themselves to both Your Call and USC.

The Your Call reporting options include:

- Website: <https://www.yourcall.com.au/report> (available 24/7 using USC's unique identifier code: USC)
- Telephone: 1300 790 228 relevant number 9am and 12am, recognised business days, AEST

Your Call remains the intermediary at all times, receiving and forwarding communication between all parties, the Director, Human Resources and nominated HR staff.

Further information is located at HR – Staff Conduct and Compliance (link when live: <https://my.usc.edu.au/working-atusc/human-resources/staff-conduct-and-compliance>.)

All notification of suspected fraud and corruption incidents must have regard to whether the conduct amounts to a public interest disclosure (PID) under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2010 (PID Act). The mechanism for making a PID is a formalised system of reporting outlined in the Public Interest Disclosures – Procedures. The Director, Human Resources is responsible for the Public Interest Disclosures Management Program in accordance with the Queensland Ombudsman's Public Interest Disclosure Standard No. 1/2019 - Public Interest Disclosure Management Program.

4.2 Anonymous complaints

Anonymous complaints relating to suspected fraud and corruption will be accepted and considered by the University. However, the action taken will be dependent on whether sufficient information is provided to warrant further enquiries.

5. Response

USC needs to be responsive and vigilant in undertaking preliminary investigations to determine whether allegations have sufficient grounds to be taken further.

In some situations, this may be straightforward (i.e. in the instance of theft of property or money in which case, the matter would be referred to the Queensland Police Service). Other possible fraudulent behaviour may not be as clear to identify and some preliminary work will need to be undertaken to form an opinion by senior management that referral to the Queensland Police Service is warranted.

Fraud and corruption can also be closely connected to corrupt conduct which are particularly dealt with under the provisions of the Crime and Corruption Act 2001 (CC Act) and outlined at section 5.4.1 below.

5.1 Procedures for investigating detected or suspected incidents

The University's response to fraud and corruption allegations or matters will vary according to the nature and seriousness of the alleged conduct. The response to instances of Student Academic Misconduct are managed through the Student Academic Misconduct – Procedures, while instances of Research Misconduct are managed in accordance with the Managing and Investigating Breaches of Responsible Research Conduct – Procedures and public interest disclosures are dealt with in accordance with the Public Interest Disclosure Procedures.

In all other instances the Vice-Chancellor and President has appointed the Director of Human Resources to be responsible for the management of the alleged conduct under these Procedures. If the suspected incident involves the Director of Human Resources, the Vice-Chancellor and President will assume this responsibility. An appropriate investigator will be appointed to deal with the matter and will be subject to any monitoring or direction from the CCC and/or other external authorities. The investigations outcomes will then be reviewed to determine appropriate action such as disciplinary action and/or a review of internal controls and processes.

The CCC's "Corruption in Focus: A guide to dealing with corrupt conduct in the Queensland Public Sector" will be used as a guide to the conduct of the investigation. It describes the various steps involved as follows:

- determining the scope and nature of any investigation
- confirming the responsibilities and powers of the investigator
- conducting the investigation
- gathering the evidence
- concluding the investigation

5.2 Internal reporting and escalation

Significant instances of fraud and corruption are maintained in a register within Human Resources. All records will be captured in an approved management system in accordance with the University's Information Management Framework – Governing Policy. Records are classified as 'restricted in accordance with section 7 of the Information and Records Management – Procedures. All incidents of these types will be reported to the University Executive and the Audit and Risk Management Committee. As part of the investigation into the incident, a review of the control environment is undertaken to continually improve risk management practices in relation to the management of fraud and corruption risk.

5.3 Disciplinary procedures

For staff covered by the Enterprise Agreement, any disciplinary action will be dealt with in accordance with the Agreement, specifically provision 5.7 regarding misconduct and serious misconduct. Disciplinary action relating to staff not covered by the Enterprise Agreement will be in accordance with the provisions of their Contract of Employment.

Disciplinary action relating to student academic misconduct will be managed in accordance with the Student Academic Misconduct – Procedures and the Student Academic Integrity – Governing Policy.

5.4 External reporting

Various legislation sets out the requirements for agencies such as the University to report matters of fraud and corrupt conduct to authorities such as the Queensland Crime and Corruption Commission, Queensland Police Service, the Queensland Ombudsman and Queensland Audit Office. The Vice-Chancellor and President, or nominee, will, if appropriate, refer any fraud and corruption allegations or matters to the appropriate external body.

5.4.1 Corrupt Conduct

The Director, Human Resources is the nominee responsible for reporting corrupt conduct to the Crime and Corruption Commission (CCC).

Where the Director, Human Resources reasonably suspects the alleged conduct may involve corrupt conduct they must:

1. Notify the CCC, and:
2. Deal with the complaint, subject to the CCC's monitoring role, as set out in these Procedures.

Where the Director of Human Resources reasonably suspects the complaint may involve corrupt conduct of the Vice-Chancellor and President, they will refer the matter to the Chancellor, who must:

1. Notify the CCC, and:

2. Deal with the complaint, subject to the CCC's monitoring role, as set out in the Complaints about the Vice-Chancellor and President (Crime and Corruption Act 2001, s 48A) - Governing Policy.

5.5 Civil proceedings to recover the proceeds of fraud or corruption

In the event of an instance of fraud or corruption that has resulted in monetary loss to the University, USC will take action to recover any lost funds. The recovery process will be initiated in instances where the likely benefits of recovery are expected to exceed the funds and resources invested in the recovery action.

5.6 Review of Internal Controls

Following the detection of fraud, the Organisational Unit Manager, in consultation with the Director of Governance and Risk Management, will reassess the adequacy of the internal control environment and identify actions to strengthen the controls.
